Independent and Dependent Clauses

Review: A clause is a group of words that has a subject and a verb.

The difference between an independent and a dependent clause is the type of word it starts with.

A dependent clause starts with a subordinator word such as "when," "if" or "which."

Examples: When Rennie gets here,
if Denise comes to class late,
which I bought last weekend.

An independent clause can stand alone as a separate sentence and does not start with a subordinator.

Examples: Let's start the music.
I'll tell her the assignment.
The battery is defective.

Every sentence must have at least one independent clause.

A dependent clause is combined with an independent clause to make a longer sentence.

Examples: When Rennie gets here, let's start the music.
If Denise comes to class late, I'll tell her the assignment.
The battery which I bought last weekend is defective.

These examples sentences with two clauses are called compound sentences. They have both an independent and a dependent clause.

Sometimes two independent clauses are put together to make a longer sentence. This is done with a comma and a FANBOYS conjunction.

Examples: Dogs bark, and cats meow.
The weather is beautiful today, so I'll take a walk.

These examples are called compound sentences.

A sentence can be both compound and complex.

Example: When cats meow, dogs bark, and birds chirp.

Using a Semi-colon to Join Two Independent Clauses

Name: _____

A semi-colon looks like a dot over a comma. It can be used instead of a coordinating conjunction to join two related independent clauses. For example, if you wanted to join the two sentences below, you have two choices.

The mountains are beautiful. I enjoy hiking in them.

Choice 1: use the coordinating conjunction, "so". The mountains are beautiful, so I enjoy hiking in them.
Choice 2: use a semi-colon. The mountains are beautiful; I enjoy hiking in them.

Join each sentence pair using a semi-colon.

1. He lives near the beach. The salty air is making his car rust.
